

Supplementary Material

Geographic Variation of the Large Red Flying Squirrel, Petaurista albiventer (Gray, 1834) (Rodentia: Sciuridae), with a Description of a New Subspecies in Southwestern China

Song Li^{1,*} and Zuojian Feng²

¹Kunming Natural History Museum of Zoology, Kunming Institute of Zoology, Chinese Academy of Sciences, 32 Jiaochang Donglu, Kunming, Yunnan 650223, China

²Institute of Zoology, Chinese Academy of Sciences, Beichen West Road, Beijing 100101, China

* Corresponding author: lis@mail.kiz.ac.cn

0030-9923/2017/0004-1321 $ 9.00/0

Copyright 2017 Zoological Society of Pakistan

APPENDIX

P. albiventer nigra, $N = 40$

Yunnan

Bijiang (KIZ 780102♀, 780416); Gongshan (KIZ 033828♀, 033829♀, 033830♂, 033831♀, 73269, 73270, 73333, 73334, 73335, 73404♂, 73442♀, 73744♂ (Holotype), 73445♂ (Paratype), 73745♀, 73823♂, 74412, 74413, 74414, 74415, 830207♀, 90035♂, 90039♀, 90043♀, 90050♂, 90051♂, 90407); Lianghe (KIZ 650236♂, 650237♂); Lushui (KIZ 74164, 200365♀); Tengchong (KIZ 578♂, 76348♀, 200366); Yingjiang (IOZ 25849♂); Weixi (810606, 830208, 830209), Zhongdian (96035).

P. albiventer muzongensis, $N = 5$

Tibet

Chayu (IOZ 27020♀, 27021♂, 27022♂); Changdu (IOZ 27043); Motuo (IOZ 27023).